President's Message

Dear Mathematics Education Leader,

On behalf of the NCSM Board and the conference planning team, I welcome you to our exciting 41st NCSM Annual Conference in the wonderful city of Washington, DC. This Conference serves the powerful purposes of bringing us closer together, allowing us to celebrate, and learn from one another as we seek ideas about how to lead well in our school districts, cities, states, and provinces. During this historic time in our country, we are reminded of the words of Martin Luther King, Jr. as he accepted the Nobel Peace Prize in Oslo, Norway, in 1964:

“I refuse to accept the idea that the “is-ness” of man’s present nature makes him morally incapable of reaching up for the “ought-ness” that forever confronts him.”

As the opening epigraph to NCSM’s PRIME Leadership Framework, Dr. King’s words underscore the intent of our understanding the theme, “It’s Prime Time: Learning and Leading Together,” for this NCSM Annual Conference. It is my hope that this conference will provide a shared learning and leading experience that will provide motivation, inspiration, and knowledge for the growth of every mathematics education leader.

NCSM members and conference attendees are unique. We are an international community of mathematics education leaders, pre-K – 16, who are widely diversified in our leadership roles. From department chairperson to district coordinator K – 8, mathematics coach to college or university supervisor and teacher, from province, state, or district curriculum leader to third grade team leader – NCSM members wear a variety of hats, and I have only named a few. Yet, we are brought together by the social glue of our common core values for the improvement of mathematics education.

The Conference will provide the vision and wisdom necessary to help each of us to reach for the “ought-ness” of improved student success we so eagerly pursue. NCSM envisions a future in which the growth of every mathematics teacher is supported and developed by highly effective mathematics education leaders.

School mathematics programs will only get better as we open ourselves and other teachers to new ideas, risk imaginatively, and enthusiastically inspire those we lead with a desire to learn and grow together. On behalf of the entire NCSM Board, we celebrate each of you – the silent heroes of the real hope for educational transformation – the leaders in our schools, colleges, and universities.

Many thanks to hundreds of NCSM members who have offered their time to ensure the Annual Conference is a valuable opportunity for you. I would especially like to recognize, Valarie A. Elswick, Susan Beal, Carol A. Edwards, Linda Fulmore, Steve and Fern Tribbey, and Diana Kendrick. They have voluntarily dedicated countless hours to build a conference that will be memorable for each of you. My thanks also to NCSM staff members who support the work of the NCSM Board – Terri Belcher, Dorothy Shadrick, Danette Garlock, and Linda Yamaguchi. Please take time to visit and thank our Sponsor Partners for their support of this Annual Conference and other NCSM activities.

We are all PRIME leaders and I invite you to share advantages and opportunities of this Annual Conference with others as you continue your PRIME leadership journey in mathematics education.

This annual conference provides a moment of personal melancholy for me, as the opportunity to serve as your president comes to an end. It has been an awesome journey for me. I will be forever grateful for your support and commitment to the mission and vision of NCSM. It was a distinct pleasure and privilege to serve so many professionals dedicated to improving student learning of mathematics.

Have a great conference!
Timothy D. Kanold
NCSM President

NCSM Publications

NCSM Journal of Mathematics Education Leadership

The editors of the NCSM Journal of Mathematics Education Leadership welcome manuscripts that address concerns of leadership in mathematics rather than those of content or delivery. Editors are interested in articles from a broad spectrum of formal and informal leaders who practice at local, regional, national, and international levels.

Categories for submittal include:

- Key Topics in Leadership
- Case Studies
- Research Report and Interpretation
- Commentary on Critical Issues in Mathematics Education
- Professional Development Strategies

Note: The last two categories are intended for short-pieces of 2 or 3 pages in length.

Deadlines for the next two issues are July 1, 2009, and January 1, 2010.

Submission and review procedures are posted on the NCSM Web Site, www.mathedleadership.org.

NCSM Newsletter

The NCSM Newsletter promotes networking and collaboration among NCSM members and other stakeholders in the education community and welcomes submission from members. The purpose of the NCSM Newsletter is to advance the mission and vision of NCSM by informing the membership of the ongoing activities of the NCSM Board, by publishing current information about issues, trends, programs, policy, and practice in mathematics education.

The NCSM Newsletter is published four times a year—fall, winter, spring, and summer—and is mailed only to NCSM members as a benefit of membership.

Submission procedures and deadlines are posted on the NCSM Web Site, www.mathedleadership.org.

Kansky Research Report Summary Service

If you are having a hard time keeping up with reports that analyze, criticize, advise, politicize, and pulverize mathematics and science education and educators, you will find this service of great value.

The Kansky Reports:

- Reduce lengthy reports to 2–4 pages.
- Provide an overview of each report's structure, conclusions and recommendations.
- Identify and briefly describe each report's publisher.
- Provide a web address from which the full report can be downloaded or purchased.

Visit the NCSM Listserv or the NCSM Web Site, www.mathedleadership.org.

Position Paper Series: Improving Student Achievement

The process of developing research-informed leadership position papers on issues critical to the future mathematics education began in the spring of 2007. Steven Leinwand submitted a proposal to the NCSM Board that described a series of “Advocacy Papers” which provided the template for what would become the NCSM Improving Student Achievement Position Paper series.

Recently released Position Papers include:

- Improving Student Achievement by Leading Effective and Collaborative Teams of Mathematics Teachers (Fall 2007)
- Improving Student Achievement by Leading Sustained Professional Learning for Mathematics Content and Pedagogical Knowledge Development (Fall 2007)
- Improving Student Achievement by Leading the Pursuit of a Vision for Equity (Spring 2008)
- Improving Student Achievement in Mathematics for Students with Special Needs (Fall, 2008)
- Improving Student Achievement by Leading Highly Effective Assessment Practices (Spring, 2009)

The next position paper in development centers on English Language Learners and will be available in the fall, 2009. Other topics under discussion for development are technology, early intervention and job-embedded professional learning opportunities.

Our thanks and appreciation to all who contributed to this series.
